Professor Newcomb has declared, from astronomical considerations, that the earth went slow and lost seven seconds, between 1890 and 1892, and then went fast and gained eight seconds between 1892 and 1893.

A Boston woman is lecturing on the newest of sciences, teaching that unpleasant feelings create harmful chemical products in the body, while benevolent and cheerful thoughts have a contrary and most desirable effect.

Rats must have access to water or they die. A trapped rat may easily be tamed by allowing no water but that offered in a spoon, for the creature soon learns to recognize the hand, which supplies this all-important necessity.

Electricity is now used for coloring leather more quickly and deeply. The hide is stretched on a metallic table and covered with the coloring liquid; a pressure of a few volts is then applied between the liquid and the table, which opens the pores of the skin and allows the color to sink in.

HERE AND ABOUT.

NOTHING BUT NEWS FOUND IN THIS COLUMN.

A Condensed Account of the Latest Happenings, Tensely Told for Busy Readers.

Greenville had a $3,000 fire one day last week.

Slaughterhouse votes on prohibition February 17.

Henderson is to have an afternoon daily paper.

E. H. Reynolds has been appointed postmaster at Greenville.

Henderson's electric street cars made the first run Saturday.

Pat McGuire was fatally shot by Robt. Lamb, in Logan county.

McGufford went dry by four votes last week. The wets will contest.

A colored child fell into an open grate and was fatally burned at Henderson.

In a free fight in Knott county, Wm. Ambory and Nat Martin were killed by Jack Collins and John Martin was wounded.

The terms of eighty-seven postmasters at Presidential offices will expire during this month. The most important office in the list is Cincinnati.

Judge Barr has again ordered the county judge of Muhlenberg county to levy and collect taxes to meet $23,000 worth of judgments in favor of J. N. Jabine and Eli H. Murray, in the old railroad bond cases.

Last Wednesday morning a through freight was wrecked in the Madisonville yards and two box cars loaded with grain were thrown from the track and crushed. No one was hurt.

Sam'l A. Miller, a millionaire bank director of Louisville, threw himself under a train at Ashville, N. C. Sunday, and was instantly killed. He was 65 years old and a sufferer from lung trouble.

Messrs. Bliss and Gardiner, who have been getting up a trade review of Hopkinsville, have about completed the work and it will be issued next week. It will be in book form profusely illustrated with half-tone pictures.

The Lexington grand jury is investigating ex-Collector J. Hull Davis' books, on the strength of charges by Editor C. C. Moore that Davidson's accounts were short. $15,000. It was this publication that caused the recent feud between Moore and Davidson.

Geo. W. Smith, editor of an A. P. A. organ called Justice, is being prosecuted for criminal libel by Collector Ben Johnson and Mr. R. Lee Suter, a commissioner of the Leland asylum. He has been indicted for libel by Mr. Suter of corruption in awarding an asylum contract. Smith and his informant, W. P. George, have been held under bond.

Two women were knocked down by a horse and robbed in the street in Louisville. One of them, Miss Anna Vasey, aged 50, was relieved of $1,000 she wore in a belt around her waist under her clothes. The thieves cut open her clothes and brutally beat her into unconsciousness. No arrests have been made.

Annie Kroninger, a 10-year old school girl, caught her dress on fire from the stove, and was fatally burned in the public school at Newport. The frightened child escaped from the room and continued to run until she fell unconscious. Her was the sixth death from the same cause in a week in Newport.

There is a good deal of complaint of the imperfect heating in some of the churches. This is due to the fact that the furnaces are not properly looked after. There is no excuse for such negligence on the part of janitors and it can only result in keeping people away from church in cold weather. Few people are willing to risk their health by shivering in cold rooms to hear even the best of sermons.

Shooting Affray at Cerulean.

A few days ago J. D. Moore and Bud Smith engaged in a row at Cerulean Springs. Moore was armed, and drawing his gun shot Smith, the ball taking effect in the left arm, making a slight wound. Lee Banks, col., was also a party to the row, it seems, and was shot at several times, but escaped without a scratch. Moore was arrested and gave a $100 bond for his appearance at the examining trial.

Trigg Circuit Court.

Circuit court convened in Cadiz yesterday and will be in session three weeks. Several of our tobacco men were on hand to meet the Trigg county farmers. The next session court will be held in this city, commencing Monday February 25.

Monthly Contests Only Are Left.

February 2 marks the beginning of the closed season for woodcocks, wild geese, doves and squirrels. It is now unlawful to shoot any of these, or to have them in your possession. Rabbits are now the only game you can hunt without violating the law.

Fire at Princeton.

A fire at Princeton early yesterday morning burned the Backet store and S. Kaufman's store on Main street. Both buildings were owned by Phil Foerg. Losses not learned.

AT THE LIBRARY.

Why Overcoat, Bundles and Wraps Are Barred.

One of the most strictly enforced rules in the Newberry library in Chicago is "No overcoats, bundles or outside wraps can be worn or carried up stairs."

Just at the left of the entrance is a large check-room where bundles, wraps and coats can be checked. Even casual visitors must remove their overcoats and have them checked with their hats and bundles before they can examine the beautiful building.

Some persons who do not understand the reasons for this rule have become indignant when the man at the foot of the stair, quietly and firmly insists that overcoats, hats and bundles must be checked. In the Newberry library are thousands of rare and costly books. Admission is free. No one is barred from the pleasure of the greatest reference library in the country. But men and women who are professional book thieves infest libraries. It is an easy matter for them to slip a rare volume under an overcoat or wrap, stick it in a pocket or hide it inside a paper-covered bundle. Librarians know these tricks, and the librarians of the Newberry library, to guard his books, compels patrons to check their overcoats and bundles.

The young women in charge of the check room are gowned in black, as are all of the young women employed in the library. They attend the check room in turn. Whether they are afraid of contagion or plain Chicago dirt is not in evidence, but before the young woman in charge is fairly ready for the day she slips a large easy glove on her left hand. The mat lies on the table, and before she takes the proffered coat she slips her hand in the right glove and then places the coat in a cubby hole. After she has given the owner of the coat his check she returns to her table, removes the right hand glove and resumes her reading.

BROTHER JONATHAN GONE.

Genuine or Typical Yankees Becoming Scarce as the Buffalo.

To people who have not visited the United States it is perhaps not generally known that the typical Brother Jonathan, with his grotesque appearance and strange accent, is becoming almost as scarce as the buffalo, but such is nevertheless the case. During the last forty years a great change has taken place in the manner and appearance of the American people. Today we find that the true, native born Americans, descended from several generations of American ancestors, are a mere handful among the bulk of America's population.

They are far outnumbered by people of foreign birth and parentage the Irish, Germans, Swedes and Italians taking the lead. The enormous influx of immigrants during the last forty years has completely changed the American type, and the people of the United States are now found to be mainly composed of German-Americans, Swedish-Americans, Italian-Americans, Irish-Americans, etc.

Indeed, there are parts of the United States where little or no English is spoken, where settlers of a non-English speaking race have made their homes, who read newspapers printed in their own language, and conduct their public meetings in their own tongue. These people, however, are not looked upon as foreigners, for as soon as they become citizens of the United States—which is possible after a four years' residence in the country—they have all the rights and privileges of native born Americans.

There are many other national peculiarities which might be quoted as reasons for abandoning the custom of calling all Americans "Yankees," but I believe I have said enough to show what a great mistake it is and why so few citizens of the great republic really deserve the title.

A Bottomless Pit.

A wonderful natural cavern was discovered in Lafayette county, Georgia, in 1891. It has the usual complement of "rooms," "galleries," "domes," "pits," etc., but its sole title to being something out of the ordinary in the cavern line is a well like abyss in one of the rooms, which, as far as anyone knows, may once have served as the chimney of hades.

It is known locally as "the bottomless pit." Stones of large size have been thrown into it with a hope that they would be heard to strike bottom after awhile, but, according to reports, "there were no reverberating sounds borne back to the ear by which its enormous depth could be ascertained."

Jerry Tobin has accepted a position with a Nashville merchant tailoring establishment.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance. Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

WHERE GRANT RESTS.

The Temporary Tomb in Riverside Park, New York.

Looks Something Like a Lake Oren—The New One Will Not Be Finished This Century—The General's Visit to Texas.

(Special New York Letter.) Last Christmas day in New York was so far from being wintry that your correspondent took a stroll to Gen. Grant's tomb in Riverside park, in the upper part of the city.

The site of the last resting-place of the great general is one of the most lovely and picturesque that can be imagined. It is situated about a hundred yards back from the brow of a high bluff that overlooks the Hudson, on the opposite side of which can be seen the wooded hills of New Jersey, studded with white cottages and villas, while to the north the majestic river stretches away for miles. In whatever direction you look a charming vista meets and gladdens the eye.

The temporary structure in which repose the remains of Gen. Grant is far

GRANT'S TEMPORARY TOMB.

From imposing. At a distance it somewhat resembles an old-fashioned balcony. It is constructed of red brick, and is constantly guarded by park policemen. I made this discovery while endeavoring to execute a rough sketch of the edifice. I was interrupted by a deep voice with a crude, impudent accent.

"No sketching is allowed. If you want to skitch the tomb, you will have to go somewhere else."

"But I'm not sketching alone. It's you who are doing all the talking."

N. B.—Since the Lexow committee has been in session it is quite safe to give back talk to a New York policeman.

Finally I asked the gray-coated guardian if I might look at the tomb and make a mental sketch of it. This seemed to bother him, and, after pondering over it for some time, he decided in my favor, but telling me not to "minton" to anybody that he had imparted the permission, he went off out of sight, and I was allowed to finish "the mental sketch" with a lead pencil.

Through the barred door of the tomb, on the right, is seen the triple casket of chilled steel. Some potted plants and faded floral decorations from Grand Army posts are also in view. The vacant space is the shade of Mrs. Grant, in case she should die before the permanent tomb and monument are completed. These stand about fifty yards to the south of the temporary structure. Work on the Grant monument is suspended in winter. It has reached a height of about forty feet, is of white marble, and will be most imposing looking when it is finished. The work has been slow on account of lack of funds, and I do not believe that this generation will see it completed.

I saw Gen. Grant twice—once when he was living and again when he, or rather his body, was lying in state in New York city hall. As a reporter of the Galveston News, I interviewed him when he visited Texas on his return from his tour around the world. He was accompanied by Mrs. Grant, Col. Fred Grant and wife, Gen. and Mrs. Sheridan and others. As the steamer could not pass over the bar, Gen. Grant and his party were brought to Galveston in a tugboat, and there it was I saw him and conversed with him.

Having been in the confederate army, I was particularly interested in the man of whom I had heard so much. What impressed me first of all was his small size, physically, although his shoulders were broad and his head disproportionately large and massive. He was no longer a young man. In fact, he seemed to be well on in middle age. His eyes were rather deep-set and of a bluish green tinge, and his beard and hair were partially gray. When he smoked, which he did incessantly, fighting one cigar from the butt of its predecessor, he held the cigar firmly between his teeth, and he held his head, as he did builders and other fighting men, slightly on one side. When he spoke his hands did so with a pump-handle, mechanical movement in one and two motions, and his talking looked just as if he were talking with a pump-handle in his eye.

Grant, who was seated near by in the shade, said: "General, come over here in the shade; you are sitting in the sun." He replied, pleasantly: "I am very comfortable here; I like it in the sun." He seemed to enjoy being roasted.

The steamer that brought Gen. Grant and his party to Galveston from Vera Cruz was several days behind time, having encountered a severe storm, and fears were expressed that the steamer had gone down with all on board. The newspaper men at Galveston received numerous telegrams from the great dailies in New York, Chicago and other northern cities asking for immediate information in regard to Gen. Grant and his party. Among the journals that were anxious for information as to the fate of the missing steamer was the New York Sun, which had always been a bitter opponent of Gen. Grant, and which had maliciously criticized the acts of his administration. Being aware of this fact, during an interview I remarked that the New York Sun was particularly anxious to have the earliest information about the delayed steamer. The hero of Appomattox slowly moved the inevitable cigar from between his teeth and replied with a grin and a twinkle of the eye, that no doubt Mr. Dana would be sadly disappointed on learning that he (Grant) was not drowned.

The people of Texas in general, and the citizens of Galveston, in particular, gave Gen. Grant a magnificent welcome. Nobody has ever before, or since, received such a tremendous ovation as did Gen. Grant when he landed at Galveston. There was an imposing display of local militia and band brands at the wharf, and thousands of enthusiastic citizens lined the streets and cheered the party on their way to the hotel. There was, and still is, an intense interest in Gen. Grant in the south, on account of his magnanimous treatment of the defeated and overwhelmed confederates. Then too, it did not seem unlikely at that time that he might once more fill the presidential chair, and it was not a bad idea to favorably impress the man who might exert an influence on congressional appropriations for the deepening of the water on Galveston bar, which was a question of vital importance, not only to Galveston, but to the entire state of Texas; so between these two causes for enthusiasm the Grant reception was adequately explained.

There was subsequently a grand banquet at the Tremont hotel, at which Gen. Grant made quite a lengthy speech. There was wine of the finest vintage, but the general resolutely turned down his glass, and did not touch a drop. However, as soon as the substantial features of the banquet were disposed of, he suggested to Mayor Leonard, who sat at his right hand, that a smoke would be in order, and he proceeded at once to make up for lost time.

The Grant party spent several days in Galveston, and enjoyed themselves very much. I remember seeing him dispose of two plates of chowder at a reception at the Garden Verein, where he subsequently planted a tree in commemoration of his visit. Galveston did need deep water on the bar very much, and no doubt exists in my mind that if Grant had been elected again he would have had a grateful appreciation of the courtesies showered upon him on this occasion. The party visited Houston and San Antonio, where they were received with almost as much enthusiasm as was displayed at Galveston. Gen. Phil Sheridan divided a horse with Gen. Grant. Sheridan was another little giant. He certainly did not appear to be much taller than his feet two inches. He was a fine, well-proportioned man, and had a pleasant smile for everybody, and many a glass did he drink with the ex-confederates who had crossed swords with him in Virginia and elsewhere.

story to prove that the instinct of self-preservation is stronger than reason: A man on a Lake Huron steamer had the only specimen of black rattlesnake I have ever met with. It was about the size of an ordinary garter snake and as vicious as Satan. It was confined in a strong box covered with thick plate glass. When anyone would touch the glass with his finger the snake would strike the underside opposite the finger as quickly as a stroke of lightning. The experimenter would always jerk away as suddenly. There was not a man on board, however muscular and free from nervousness, who could keep his finger to the glass when the snake would strike, although knowing that it could not possibly touch him. Strong men would try it again and again, certain of their ability to endure the test, but with the same result.

A QUEER FIND.
How a Bundle of the Inholders' Company Found One of Its Measures.

A curious relic, a century and a half old, was accidentally found by the heads of the Inholders' company while taking a stroll through Housditch. In the matter of measures for corn or for beer, from potlives to pewter vessels, the gentlemen are an antiquarian connoisseurs, and when he saw on an old stall a strange looking article he instinctively knew that it was an ancient bottle for measuring corn, and might even have had in its day the honor of belonging to the company with which he is associated.

"What's that?" he asked the dealer.
"That's a spittoon," was the reply.
"It's a curious one, isn't it?" continued the dealer.
"All I know," answered the dealer, "is that it's very old and very dirty, and I'll let you have it dirt cheap."

He was as good as his word, and for a ridiculously small sum the officer of the Inholders' company became the possessor of the "spittoon." When he cleaned and polished the article he found it to be one of the company's own measures, bearing the date of 1781, and the names of the master and wardens of the year. The bundle intended to present the measure to the guild. It is curious to note that the master of the company in the year mentioned was Mr. Nixon, while in 1894 that position was occupied by Mr. Nix.—London Telegraph.

GOITRE IN THE NECK

The Electropoise has cured what was supposed to be a cure on the neck of Mrs. Low Thompson of Montgomery, Ky. The enlargement began to diminish soon after treatment of the Electropoise was applied; at this time it does not show at all. Large quantities of mucus was thrown off and sometimes corruption an inch long and as large as my little finger. Others of my friends have the Electropoise and the one in my family has proved its curative powers on more than one occasion.

W. H. RECTOR,

Cadiz, Ky. Nov. 1, 1894.
Dear Sirs:—I write to inform you that I am more than satisfied with the investment I made with the Electropoise. I am now a well woman where I was a perfect wreck from the effects of asthma. I commenced treatment last July.

Mrs. W. H. RECTOR,
Cadiz, Ky., May 14, 1894.
Mrs. Rector, under date of August 3d, says: "My health continues good; I have no return of asthma and am in better health than I have ever been in my life; have gained in weight over 15 pounds. A neighbor of mine is using it for goitre, and it has very much reduced the largeness of her neck; think she will be entirely cured."
Electropoise put out on trial for four months for $10. Send for valuable book free.

THEY ARE GOING

Some people may be opposed to the use, and some to the abuse of whiskey, yet its use is often absolutely necessary, especially for medicinal purposes. In such cases, pure undiluted stuff is needed—not a doctored, drugged combination—and when the L. W. HARPER is used you get the best results, without any bad effects. Its purity and high standard will be maintained because this firm has an enviable reputation which it means to sustain.

It can be had at W. R. Long's Hopkinsville, Ky.

Ramblers.

What will other makers do WITH RAMBLERS AT A 100? 'Twill keep their agents mighty blue, WITH RAMBLERS AT A 100!

Will people take some cheaper tire Than "G. & J."—their hearts desire—To "boost" the maker's profit higher, WITH RAMBLER AT A 100?

There are others, that is true, LIKE RAMBLERS—AT A 100—But none so perfect through and through. AS RAMBLER AT A 100.

Will riders buy those cheaper made, With high list prices for the "cutting" trade, And pass the "leader"—highest grade—THE RAMBLER AT A 100?

We think not. Respectfully,
